

Application No. 10/667,938
Amendment dated November 14, 2005
Reply to Office Action of May 13, 2005

Listing of Claims:

1      Claim 1: (Original) A women's undergarment comprising:

2                  a generally triangular shaped front panel having a tapered crotch region
3                  and a wider upper frontal portion, said upper frontal portion having a strap
4                  attached at each apex for supporting the panel;
5                  said tapered crotch region having a strap attached at the lower apex of
6                  said front panel;
7                  wherein said straps converge at a point near the posterior of the person
8                  wearing the undergarment and below the waistline of the person.

1      Claim 2: (Original) A thong-type low-cut undergarment for women comprising:

2                  a wedge shaped panel having a top which is adapted to extend up above
3                  the woman's crotch area but remain below the waist, and also having one
4                  point of said wedge shaped panel attached to a strap extending rearward
5                  between the user's legs; and
6                  wherein said panel comprises a thong having a first strap attached at the 7                  top of the panel adapted to fit about the user's waist and also having a
8                  second strap adapted to extend below the user's crotch and being 9                  securely connected to said first strap at a point on the posterior of the 10                 user at or below approximately the circumferential midline of the user's

Application No. 10/667,938
Amendment dated November 14, 2005
Reply to Office Action of May 13, 2005

11 posterior.

1      Claim 3: (Original) A women's thong undergarment comprised of:
2            a wedged shape front panel, upper support straps extending from the
3            wider, upper portion of the front panel extending about the wearer below
4            the wearer's waist, the narrow end of the panel extending below the 5            wearer's crotch and supported by a lower strap extending between the 6            wearer's legs up to a point behind the wearer joining the upper support
7            straps and attaching at said point with an approach angle of about 120
8            degrees (120°) in relation to each other strap.

1      Claim 4: (Original) The women's thong undergarment of claim 3
2            wherein further the upper portion of said wedged shape front panel does
3            not rise up above the wearer's lower waist and provides for said upper 4            support straps to encircle the wearer's body below the hipline and
5            connects with said lower strap at a point below the top of the buttocks of 6            the user.